Your Park A Trash Dump

Would you collect the trash in your neighborhood then dump it in your front yard?

That is exactly what the city arminstration has been doing for some time.

With the approval of the city manager, Mayor and Council, city trucks of the Sanitation dept. collect trash from homes thruout the city, haul it to Balboa Park and dump it opposite the golf course between Perishing drive and the Fisherman's casting pool.

A city crew is standing by to wet down the tons of trash dumped, and cover it over with dirt, leaving a dangerous condition for future building programs on that site.

Once again the Adminstration is showing it's utter contempt for taxpayers and the city good. This afront is equalled only by the cleverly designed propositions which will face the taxpayers at the polls on June ballot, when voters will be asked to approve - in piece - meal fashion - more than 200 millions in bonds.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Everlasting Punishment"

The theological doctrine of punishment for evil will be explored in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, under the "Everlasting Punishment." That punishment of evil is inherent in evil and the reward of good inherent in spirituality will be high-lighted. The Golden Text from Proverbs (13:21) sets the keynote of the Lesson-Sermon "Evil pursueth sinners; but to the righteous good shall be repayed."

The Mosaic law of justice is used in the sermon where Moses declares, "If a soul sin, . . . he shall restore that which he took violently away. or the thing which he hath deceitly gotten, or that which was delivered him to keep, or the lost thing which he found, Or all that about which he hath sworn falsely; he shall even restore it in the principal, and shall add the fifth part more thereto, . . . in the day of his trespass offering (Leviticus 6:2,4,6).

"The moral law, which has the right to acquit or condemn, always demands restitution before mortals can 'go up higher',

PROFESSOR Walden Hightower, local fellow who instructs over at the state college and comes up pretty often with some bughouse theory, made a speech claiming "there ain't no such animal as a 100 per cent pure Republican or Democrat." Why, even the dumbest codger in Dawdle Dell knows. hot as politics is down here, that a Republican whose soul was bothered with a single, solitary Democrat idea, or a Democrat with a Republican itch, would hang himself just to spite the opposite party

Hank Potter, store keeper over at Sweet Lick, says he's glad that "death, which chases all of us, ain't as speedy as Mad Hopping, hot-rod ambulance driver for the Rest-in-Peace Mortuary." Hank says a corpse can always depend on a good and fast last lap to graveside with Mr. Hopping driving. The time he brought Mrs. Rafe Butcher's body from Sweet Lick, he outdistanced the rest of the funeral procession three times, having to retrace his course each time to find his confused followers. Those who believe in ghosts say Mrs. Butcher's shade grew tired of the bumpy road and departed the ambulance on the edge of Marple's Woods. Anyway. that's how the woods got the reputation for being haunted by a mad spirit that thunders through the trees in a hot-rod golden chariot.

Mrs. Clem Poore returned from the city and told the Nimble Fingers Sewing Club Thursday evening: "Original creations in clothes, that's the rage. A woman of taste would rather be caught married to another woman's husband than wearing the other woman's dress design. You can hardly expect originality in men, but it is a must in dress."

Foster Parent

It all stems from "an old Saturday custom." Twenty years ago America's famous Candy Lady, Julia Steven, moved by the yearning in some small faces at the windows of her Chicago candy kitchens, decided to let the youngsters form a sampling club. The Saturday Sampling Club may not be listed in "Who's Who," but today as many as 600 of its young members show up on Saturday morning for their sweets.

And today Julia Steven—Mrs. Walter A. Krafft, as she is in private life—has extended her interest in children around the world. Hundreds of freedom packages have been sent to children's institutions in many countries, and Mrs. Krafft has sponsored a nine-year-old girl in Belgium (a war orphan) and two little boys in a school in France for several years.

When the Foster Parent's Plan for War Children recently inaugurated its Chicago campaign Mrs. Krafft acquired four more foster children, one each in Italy, Greece, England and Holland. The girl on the right helping to pass out the candy is Sheila Shepherd, the British war orphan who has been adopted by the city of Chicago.

Through the Foster Parent's Plan a child is sponsored rather than actually adopted. The sponsor's contributions keep the child in a home, either private or institutional, until he is able to go out on his own and become independent

The Plan was started in 1937 during the Spanish Civil War and has continued to operate since then. It is possible to become a foster parent for as little as $ a month

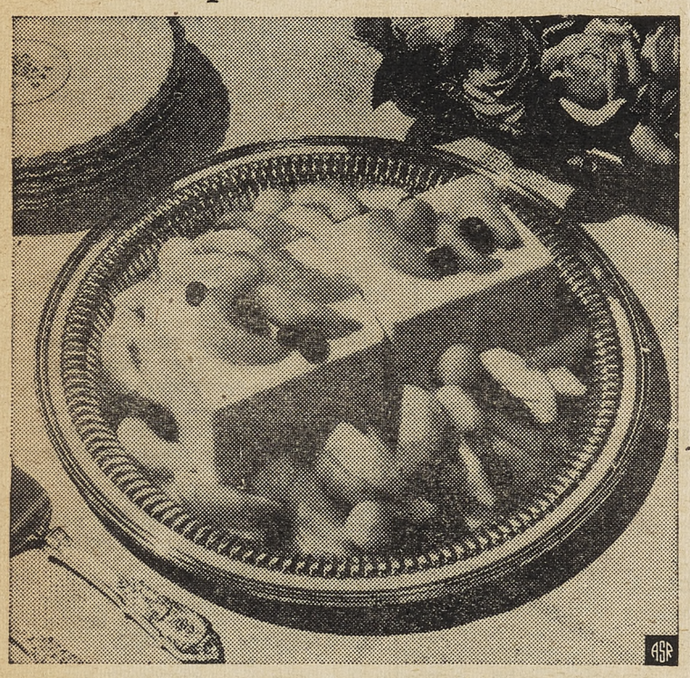
Ice Cream Plus Fruit Tops In Refreshment



This time of year, heavy desserts don't do the trick. Tangy flavor and cool foods are in order, and they're easy to achieve, too, if you use whatever fruit is most plentiful in your local markets, as the topping for pre-packaged ice cream.

An elegant dessert for eight, this appetizing buffet platter is simple to arrange and serve, and simpler still to provide, since it means only buying two pints of pre-packaged ice cream when you do your marketing, keeping them in the handy paraffined cartons in the freezing compartment of your refrigerator until you're ready to put them on the table with their timely trimmings of sliced fruit, melon balls and berries.

Your Home

By Frances Ainsworth

Springtime is traditionally redecorating time at our house and we're in the midst of the job right now. Because we wanted to do a really professional job I talked to Mr. Hayes Quinn, the color consultant for the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. He gave me complete instructions for correctly repainting a room.

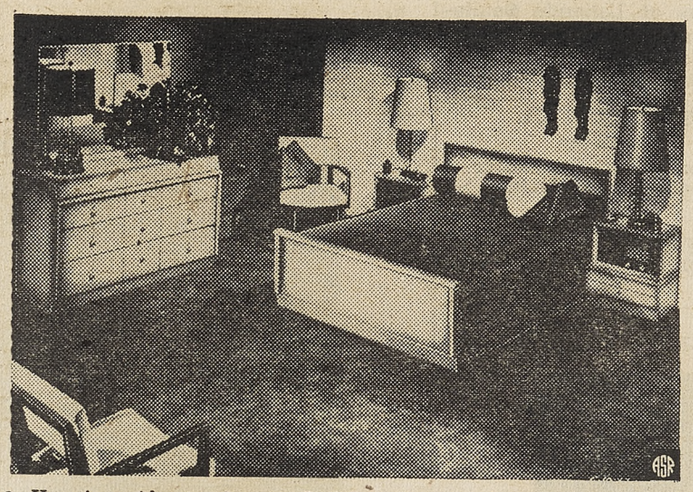
Because so many of you will also be re-decorating, I thought you'd be interested in these suggestions. First — according to Mr. Quinn — comes the preparation of the walls. Upon this operation depends the success of the paint job. Before starting to paint, wash or scrape off all calcimine, loose paint, grease and dirt. Fill all cracks with patching plaster and sand to a smooth surface. Touch up patched spots with first coater. Even though no spots or cracks need patching, wash the surface thoroughly.

Mr. Quinn explained that the application of paint on interior plaster surfaces has become increasingly difficult, because of such things as a tendency to rush painting on damp walls. That's why these preparatory steps are doubly important. He mentioned, too, that it is not wise to use varnish sealing coats, because they may cause trouble for later painting work.

One of the most important steps, he emphasized, is to read the directions on the label. By following these instructons, you are assured of a better paint job.

We are following this expert advice carefully and are mighty pleased with the results. Oil base wall paints and primers certainly gave a professional look to our rooms . . . and we're going to decorate the "right" way from now on!

Furniture Fashions



Here is an idea to give your bedroom that "dramatic look." Against a background of bright red carpeting, and white and gray walls, the shaded Fieldfare bedroom furniture contrasts perfectly.

This is an ideal decorative scheme for the homemaker who wants to refurnish a room within a budget—expensive looking, but priced to fit her purse.

The bedroom furniture is mahogany wood finished in an off-white color. The finish is enlivened by a grain texture shaded in gray-tan tones. It is easy to clean, long lasting, and is resistant to perfume, water and scratches.

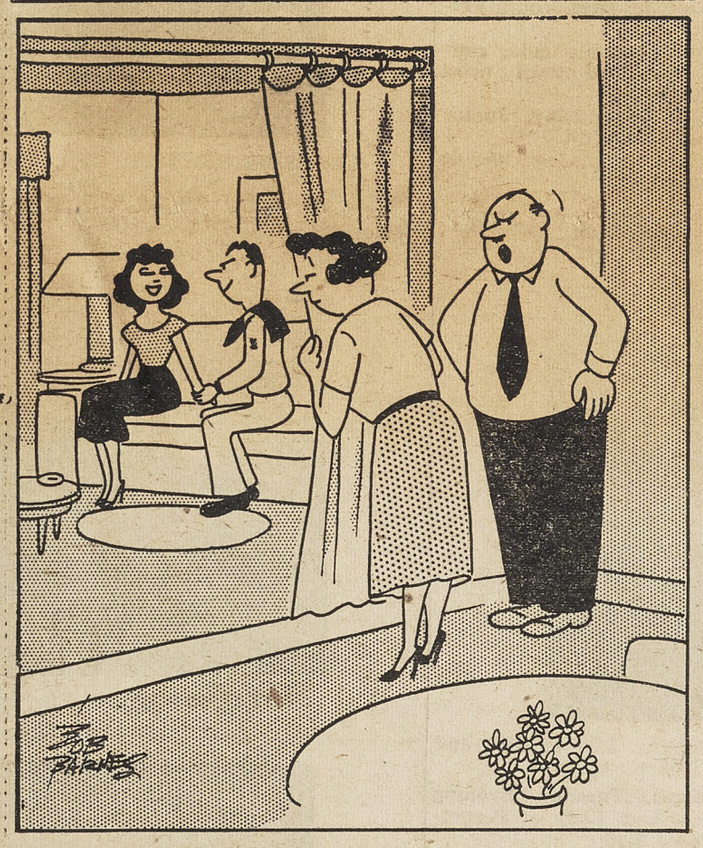
An oustanding feature of this suite is that even a room 10 feet by 12 feet is more than ample to accommodate the pieces shown.

Other pieces in the group include a chest of drawers, vanity, and a bookcase headboard.

For accent touches of black—in the lamp bases, exposed wood on the chairs, and in other accessories—have been used.

This is one way to achieve an up-to-date room setting without straining the family budget.

LAFF OF THE WEEK



What do you mean, NICE, hard-working boy? I was a sailor once myself.

STATE POLICE down in Georgia have caught a few law-abiding motorists. The officers thumb these good drivers to the curb and give them a good talking—but it is not the tongue lashing the drivers expect. Instead, it is part of the Georgia highway patrol's policy of stopping safe drivers and commending them on their highway manners.

Caught driving safely near Valdosta last week was Dawdle Dell's "champeen greenhorn," Collard Green, vacationing in the southland with his wife, Blondine.

He was sputtering along in his 1930 Ford, not exceeding 25 m.p.h., driving on his side of the road, and veering off a straight line not one iota. Suddenly, the shrill whine of a siren in his left ear forced him to ram his brake pedal to the floor. Neither Collard nor his brakes are as quick as they were in 1930, so the car continued in motion until Collard in confusion turned the front wheels into a ditch. A police cruiser ground to a dusty halt beside him. Blondine screamed.

A burly patrolman leaped from the cruiser. "I must compliment you on not exceeding 50 m. p. h.," he growled politely. Collard felt better. The way his coupe rattled, no telling how fast he had been going.

"You are not drunk," sneered the cop. "Congratulations, Bud! And although it's not very inspiring, stopping a guy for sticking to his side of the road, I must thank you for driving on the right."

Just then a new car roared past, doing 90 on the left side, veering in a corkscrew spiral, and leaving a trail of whiskey bottles. The cop sighed. "Don't have to worry about those guys any more since we stop the good drivers now. But I can't utter nothing but compliments, and I got a few choice cuss words cankering in my chest."

Blondine hadn't recovered from her fright. She begged, "Officer, please let us go. My husband will buy a driver's license soon as we get home. I promise!"

A new light came into the policeman's eyes as he gazed at Collard. "You dirty, law-breaking skunk!" he snarled. "Welcome to Georgia!"

SUNDOWN ON THE PACIFIC SHORE

A novel about the Great West

BY RENAN PREVOST

Copyright by Renan Prevost, May 1955 All rights reserved

PREFACE

All thru the West there are Ghost Towns. Mostly in the region of the gold mines, of the wild, reckless days of 1849 and after. There are ruins of buildings and etc., which have a story, of the days of glory and easy wealth for some men; and dissappointment and tragic passing for other men.

About every city there are happenings of the past which are not always recorded; some men leave great names for their accomplishments, and land marks are named after them such as Parks, Streets and Schools. Also there are men, the workers who have "done the work" who are usually forgotten, with their passing on from this world. This story is about these men of great courage, supreme courage. Many of them arrived here without funds, and so gainful employment was necessary and that was work- hard work. Work not in line with their skill in a trade or profession.

Ghost towns have their story. So stories exist about buildings, water works, factories, railroads and other endeavors concerned with the earning of a livehood. These stories become interesting, because they portray a life during the days of the past,almost forgotten. Great buildings or public utilties are usually known by the name of the man or corporation which caused the construction. Very seldom is any credit given to an architect, or the men who actually did the work. These were the men-"the brains" who were responsible for the erection of the structure or etc. And so this novel is about those "brains" and how they came West and what their life was like.

There are certain things effecting the economic welfare of men, which cause them to migrate. Generally it is promise of better living conditions or opportunities of easy attainment of wealth, thru land booms, new agricultural crops such as rare fruits, a better livable climate,as an aid to regain health;or as in the case of the colonization of this great country- an escape from persecution or oppression.

Men have been traveling to the West for generations, so we travel West with our characters, starting in 1880.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

The Trip to The River.
The Story About the Missions.
New Englander's Day.
Remembering About Old New England.

Twitcher greeted them, "Buenos dias mi amigas?" ("How ar eyou today?")

The old Indian, white haired, and apparently very old, whose face lighted up as if it was answer to a prayer, in return replied in Spanish, "Si, mi amigo gracias." ("Yes, I'm very good, thank you.)

Twitcher asked the old Indian couple, "Mis amigos recuerden uds,ll tumpo cuando aqui esbaban los padres do estra mison?"

"Si, Senor, yo era un pequeno cuardo los misiones y las Padres estaoan aqui, esos dias eran may gloriosos, y nosotros Indios jams olvidamos estos achenta anos de gloria."

Twitcher replies to the old Indian couple, "Algun dia los Padres reqreseran."

The Indian replied, "Ud es buen hombre. Ajala que esto sea cierto."

Then the Indian couple got in their buggy and the old horse started along the old trail, which was now weed-lined path, well known by the Indians, especially those of many years ago. A few palms and olive trees lined the road. They were the only survivors of the grand days of the Missions, now long passed and almost forgotten. The adobe bricks used in the building of the chapel were crumbling, and returning to the earth from whence they came. But the cement, made of local lime by the Indians, under the tutorage of the Padres, was hard and strong. What an eternal structure could have been erected if the bricks were made of that native cement.

Martha continued, "I found one account where it was mentioned that the Indians paid for their Christianity with work, which was to be expected. All colonization and converting to the faith by Spain was protected by the sword. But then the secularization of the Missions was expected because it was the policy of Spain, and later, Mexico. It was far-sightedness of that mother country to see that the esablishment of Mission estates all over a colony, which would remain permanently the property of the church, would eventually lead to a system of non-taxable property, which would soon absorb the wealth and power of the State. So it was the policy to return the estate to the natives who were expected to be able to continue in the mode of life taught them. However, because of change of political condition, that of becoming part of the United States, which was expected because of the many thousands of settlers from the States coming to California, the Missions' wealth of cattle and so on was squandered and destroyed."

The party then visited inside the ruins. Quietness prevailed. Yes, solitude in all its aspects, because inside was an unmarked graveyard. For those who died during the early Mission days. Yet it was a blessing that those Indians, when Father Serra came, did not possess gold and other worldly wealth, for some white men have dispoiled natives rather than try to civilize them and convert them to a faith which they worship to this day. These Missions are monuments to those who toiled, not for profit or personal gain, but to educate natives to a new way of life. Natives who were less industrious and only worked to provide bare necessities of a life of mere food and shelter of the very poorest sort."

"That is very interesting, Mrs. Twitcher. I enjoyed it very much," said Jerry. Soon the lunch was over, and as the sun was far over the West, the party started for home. It was dark when they arrived in town.

Twitcher suggested, "Some day New Town will be a great metropolis. I hope we all live to see that day."

"Yes, that would be nice," replied Bill, "and may I thank you for a very pleasant day? I am sure I speak for all of us."

Having now arrived at the Marcus Furniture Store, Bill and Jerry and their wives again thanked Twitcher and his wife, and bid them a pleasant good night.

Story by an Indian—Great Freeze of '67.
Water in San Diego River.

The meeting of the Town Trustees sometimes turned out to be a debate between opposing factions of the citizenship.

Samuel Stayson, being aggressive and domineering, started the program, if it can be called a program.

"Gentlemen and fellow citizens," he started, "I demand that those gas-buggies be outlawed from using the public streets. By their constant movement this way, that way, and such, we will become a nation of cross eyes, by the constant four directional vision necessary to be safe from bodily harm. We must stop these pesky contraptions now. Already my eyes are bothering me. Sure, I had one of those foul-smelling, smoking, death-dealing contraptions, but never again. So I demand they be ruled off of our streets, The exhaust gas is detrimental to the lungs and the noise is deafening to the ears. The whole contraption is a wrecker of our whole human nervous system. Besides tending to make us cross-eyed, they will cause us to be jumpng idiots, trying to keep safe from being run down by those leap frog, tiller driven tin cans."

Such a demand was taken as a joke, because there was no answer. It appeared as not needing anything but a good laugh, and that laugh was roared.

"Gentlemen," started James Twitcher, "now that I am a member of your Chamber of Commerce I will offer a few suggestions for all to consider. This is not a Chamber of Commerce offering, it is my own personal idea. This town, to grow, should preserve our historic land marks, such as some of the old adobe buildings at Old Town. They can be historical museums. They can house things of interest, such as antique furniture of life here many years ago. Then, there is the old Mission, now in ruins. We should save these as points of interest. This town has a heritage unequalled by our sister cities to the North. This is where the white man's civilization started in California. The Pueblo lands should be retained, not sold. Parks, we need them, and maybe some day they will be planted to trees. And most important, is our water supply. I suggest great dams back in the mountains where it really rains. Our present supply is not enough. Thank you."

The thought of one Twitcher started an argument.

"We have water, plenty of water. The sands of the river are inexhaustable. The wells at the foot of Sand Rock Grade are potentially sufficient for a larger supply of water. Then we have a supply from Otay Dam. We have sufficient water developed and I see no reason for more expense for the taxpayer. Taxes are too high now."

This was the thought of an unidentified citizen, a mouthpiece for someone.

But Twitcher was ready with an answer. "Yes, we have water, also we have a desert-appearing place. We have water. Otay water to be sure, and water from the San Diego River at Old Town. We need more water, and cheaply, so it can be used to change the appearance of our homes. This town does not own a water supply. What we get is supplied to us through a private company, operated for profit to be sure. Suppose the company goes broke, or the water supply is exhausted. Then what do we do? Dig more holes in the river and haul the water in barrels?" So Twitcher sat down.

"The man must be—well I will say not sane, to want the town to own its water supply and build dams way back in ponds? The idea of going back fifty miles for water, when we have plenty of water in our own back yard, so to infer. Look at the Mountain Flume Company. They bring water from the mountains, some of it may get to the city some day. What foolish expenditure of borrowed money, that turned out to be. I grant that money will never be recovered, which was spent for construction. No. No foolish mountain dams. We have plenty of water closer to hand," replied Stayson.

"Gentlemen," again started Twitcher. "All I want to say is, if you want water go where water is! Remember that. Always remember that 'if you want water, go where water is; where pure water is.' "

"And pure water is not in the river at the foot of Sand Rock Grade. To be sure, there has been planted some date palms there and they are growing nicely. Maybe it is a case of both water and food for those palms. I predict that place will be a public park someday, where the future citizens of this city will be able to see where the water once came from. Those future citizens will want pure mountain water, not the water that has passed through dairy farms and hog pens, on its way to the Ocean. So, you see, how that the good fathers, or somebody, has been giving this place water, such water. And just before the stream empties into the Ocean waters of false bay, they pump that water to the top of the the hill and then it comes to town for all of us, or it did come to town at some time. Maybe it was both food and drink. Who knows? Well, I am for pure mountain water. Thank you for your attention."

And that ended the meeting.

Arriving at home, Martha asked, "How was the meeting?"

"Meeting? It was like an old maid's convention, with apologies to the old maids. Some day there will be an awakening here. I hope it is not too late. One old fellow questioned my sanity about dams in the mountains to provide a clean water supply. Such a lot of supposedly enlightened citizens."

PART TWO

Next day at the Livery Stable.

"Hello, Charlie, Dad," extended the Madam, upon entering the stables. This time being conveyed there in her surrey, and the usual Negro driver.

"Good morning, yes, where is the gas-buggy?" he asked.

"Well, it is like this. Maybe I should have a chauffeur. I don't do so good in keeping it running. How about your boy, can he work for me?" she asked.

"I don't think I want my boy working at your place. Maybe it would not be good for him. No, I guess not," was Charlie's reply. "I don't think he should be a gambler."

"Don't worry about your boy. Here is my proposition. First, we have a telephone put in here, so I can telephone you when I want the gas-buggy sent up to my house. Then we keep it here on call. I will need it in the day time only. I will pay a reasonable monthly amount for the service. Your boy can only run it as and when requested."

"That may alright, and then it may not be alright. You see Stayson does not like to see that 'gallant vehicle', as he called it, running on the main street. If I make that kind of a deal he may call my loan, which I can't pay, then I would not be in business. Sorry, not now," replied Charlie, then replenished his wad of tobacco.

"How much is your note at the loan office, or is it a mortgage?" she asked.

"It is a note for six hundred dollars that I borrowed a few years ago, to purchase this place. Never been able to pay it off. Just able to make expenses and pay the interest. Stayson lets me know that I stay in business only at his pleasure." replied Charlie.

"Well, so that is his racket. Well, we can fix that. What interest does the old mizer charge?"

"Twelve percent, as usual. Can't get money any cheaper," replied Charlie.

"Oh yes, you can. Tomorrow you meet at his place at ten o'clock. I will loan you the money at no interest, so you can pay Stayson, then you can pay me when you can. Is that a deal?" she extended.

"Yes, that is a deal, so I guess Tom can be your chauffeur," agreed Charlie.

"From then on the gas-buggy was almost a daily sight on the main street. Tom, the town's first chauffeur, and some responsibility he made of it. How the brass did shine on that machine, and as instructed, he was to park in front of the loan office, or as near as possible, so Stayson could see for himself that the rising generation was alive and mechanically inclined. Way back there, what for, to make duck

2nd ANNUAL PRESENTATION

SERAFINA

THE PLAY BY JEROME GERARD; MUSIC BY RENAN PREVOST

with additional numbers by

LOVE - INTRIGUE - COMEDY

A first rate tourist attraction must be original, entertaining, enjoyable and it must be seen only in one place Tourists travel the world over to see unusual attractions. "Serafina" and "Stars in the West" can be annual attractions for San Diego. There has never been anything offered in San Diego, to compare with the possibilties of these Historical Operettas, excepting, the two great Expositions -1915 and 1935, in our wonderful Balboa Park.

Why we offer these Operettas - The presentation of stage shows and etc., which have been produced for years, elsewhere, does not create prime tourist attractions of merit, for San Diego. Because as a rule tourists do not travel far to see stage shows, which can be seen at home or nearby.

Or to hear music which is regularly used on the radio or on records for home playing. All of which; although, said shows and music are acceptable for amusement; but, they are in reality "common stuff" and seldom attract the well informed and enlightened tourist, seeking the unusual.

.A tourist attaction of supreme merit is the Historical Operetta. And produced annually in a Civic Theatre located admist the fine buildings of Balboa Park, which is world famous and the center of culture of San Diego. We have the Russ Auditorium which will suffice until a Civic Theatre can be provided, We have the talent and the most enjoyable operetta — "SERAFINA"

These Operettas are new, with appeal unlike the over-played stage presentations of the past years.

So,- We offer these original Operettas, they can be tourist attractions unsurpassed; because they have not been produced elsewhere, most of the music has not been published, or offered for public use. Here are two historical Operettas, in all that it implies, about our San Diego.

The historical facts presented in the Operettas are such as has never heretofore been presented.
